In June 1983, wrestling in Tokyo, Japan, Hogan captured the International Wrestling Grand Prix championship with a win over Antonio Inoki in the finals of the tournament. This was Hogan's first major Standing an unbelievable 7'5" and weighing 425 pounds there isn't a wrestler who even comes close to matching Andre's physical dimensions. In his career Andre has toured the world besides wrestling in every arena in the United States.

Andre has appeared on several television programs including the "Greatest American Hero", the "Six Million Dollar Man", and the "Fall Guy" and he is constantly besieged for more and more T.V. parts.

Wrestling an average of six times a week for the entire year, Andre just does not have the time to devote to anything other than wrestling. Last year alone Andre wrestled 320 times and his record during these matches was simply incredible.

Andre has been wrestling professionally since 1965 having begun his rise to fame in Europe. The Giant's first appearance in North America occurred in 1969 in Montreal, Canada. From there Andre wrestled in the AWA with his first appearance in the famed Madison Square Garden occurring in 1972. Since that day, the Giant has been everywhere.
